Carter is a recently rescued draft that came from Arkansas. He was trailered over the weekend, and when they got him home, they noted that he lays down a lot despite having a normal appetite. He had a temperature of 101 on Sunday, and Julie administered some banamine. She also noted L nasal discharge.

On exam today, HR 60 (nervous), RR 28, T 100.7, normal GI borborygmi, normal lung and trachea sounds, yellow mucopurulent L nasal discharge present. No other abnormalities noted except for smegma of the sheath and scar of RF coronet band and hoof wall. He walks in well with no apparent lameness. Eyes are clinically normal.

Bloodwork - only significant finding is marked elevation in SAA - likely from sinusitis.

Dental - Severe rostral hooks 106 and 206, cupping 109, patent infundibulum with feed packing 209, overlong 309 and 409.

Radiographs of L maxillary sinus - Fluid line present in maxillary sinus, suspect rostral tooth root of 209. Recommend 209 removal tomorrow.

Carter	Katelyn Waggoner, D.V.M.	Teeth - Cheek Tooth Extraction	3/20/2025	1	$400.00 $200.00	$0.00	$200.00

Attempted 209 extraction.

The patient was sedated and a maxillary nerve block performed. Then the 209 tooth was separated from adjacent teeth and the periodontal ligament progressively broken down. The tooth was not able to be fully extracted today with the time allotted, but was significantly loosened which will facilitate removal tomorrow.

The patient still has significant nasal discharge and some L side facial swelling. I discussed with Julie that the tooth removal is the first step, but I am worried about foreign material in the sinus, etc.

Tooth extraction retropulsion through maxillary sinus - medial root was significantly bulbed and proliferative, making oral extraction impossible. The retropulsion was performed by sedating the patient and prepping the site over the maxillary sinus with radiograph guidance. A U shaped incision was created with the flap reflected ventrally. Then the soft tissues were dissected down to the bone and a trephine was created into the maxillary sinus. Again radiographs were used to confirm correct position over 209. Finally the tooth was retropulsed with an 8 mm punch and small fragments cleared out with a smaller punch and digitally. Radiographs were used to confirm all root fragments were removed. Then the site was lavaged with one L of LRS and 100 mL of metronidazole injectable. The alveolus was packed with dental impression material.

The last procedure performed today was another lavage of the sinuses through the frontal sinus. More purulent material was released during sinus lavage than with tooth retropulsion, so there is a possibility that there is foreign material more in the frontal sinus than maxillary. Julie is aware that this may require endoscopy or frontal sinus trephination.

Plan to keep him on equisul over the weekend and monitor the amount of nasal discharge. We may consider a switch to metronidazole as well.

Caitlin is recently rescued. She was hauled from Arkansas over the weekend. Julie has not noted any issues with her since she has been at the house - appetite is good, etc. On exam, HR 42, RR 16, T 99.7, normal GI borborygmi, normal respiratory auscultation, MM pink and moist, CRT <2, no abnormalities appreciated. Eyes are clinically normal. She walked into the treatment area soundly. Teeth - moderate lingual and buccal points reduced. Bloodwork shows moderate elevation in SAA - we will monitor her for any signs of illness, hold off on Core administration for at least a week.

Theo is a recently acquired rescue. He has a significantly swollen LH limb, and Julie notes that he doesn't eat all that well. She is wondering if he just doesn't feel well, though he passes manure, etc. She has also noted him doing an odd movement with his head/neck where he stretches it out and up to the left. She has noted that he seems a little ataxic or off and is wondering about EPM. On exam, Theo has severe swelling of the LH that is likely chronic progressive lymphangitis. He walks very stiff on that limb, and sometimes hyperflexes it like it hurts. He also stands with his hind legs inappropriately camped out behind him, and occasionally stands with his limbs base wide as well. He does not have an obviously ataxic gait in circles, but seems weak when he backs. BCS 3/9. Ok to do EPM testing, though he is not a classic case and may be more sore with the LH. HR 52, RR 20, T 99.0, normal gut sounds, normal respiratory auscultation, MM pink and moist, Slight discharge from L eye but without obvious inflammation - possibly from the dust over the last few days. Also slight nasal discharge but without tracheal rattle. Bloodwork shows marked SAA elevation and hyperglobulinemia - SAA could be from the hind limb, but also could be from upper resp infection from kill pen environment, stress, etc. Treat with 22 tabs SMZ twice daily for 7 days. Recheck if not improving. Hold off on vaccination for 2 weeks. Teeth: moderate lingual and buccal points reduced. Multiple ETRs 200 arcade, especially 207-8 with corresponding changes in 300 arcade. Hooks 106 and 206. Ages around 12 years.

Potter is recently acquired about three weeks ago. Julie has not noted anything at home except that he has an occasional cough and sometimes will quid alfalfa. Dr. Hardy treated him with a dose of excide for the cough. It improved, but never went totally away.

On exam today, Potter walks into the building soundly. He is BCS 5/9 and Julie said that he has improved in body condition since she got him. HR 54, RR 16, T 98.9, normal gut sounds normal respiratory noises, MM pink and moist, eyes clinically normal. No other abnormalities noted today.

Bloodwork - NSF except hyperglobulinemia, likely from kill pen environmental pathogen exposure.

Teeth - 100 arcade significant cupping, 200 arcade has strange tooth present lateral to complete 110 - it looks like a complete incisor with one root that is growing at an angle down and toward the cheek. It was loose with pressure from the dental float, but broke off easily when moderate pressure was applied for extraction. Radiographs show that there is a root lateral to the rest of the normal roots of 210. It looks quiescent at this time, and broke off in such a way that it is smooth with the gingiva. I recommended leaving it alone for now and monitoring for signs of dental disease/sinusitis. Suspect developmental abnormality. Multiple ETRs 200 arcade with opposing changes in the 300 arcade. 306 expired, 406 expired. Ramps 106 and 206.

Core vaccine administered today.

Addison	Katelyn Waggoner, D.V.M.	Exam - Brief	3/21/2025	1	$30.00 $0.00	$0.00	$0.00
---------	--------------------------	--------------	-----------	---	------------------------------	--------	--------

Addison presented for eye lesion that was noted to be getting worse over the last day. She had a possible corneal ulcer a week ago in that eye, but now there is something protruding from it. Also in the past few days she has come up with a head tilt that they had not noted previously. She has a history of laying down a lot, which has been consistent since Julie got her a couple months ago.

On exam, the L eye has a 3 mm circumference area of proliferative yellow-white tissue that takes up stain. The pupil is constricted. There is minimal corneal edema around the defect and the eye is not overtly uncomfortable - she is holding it open and not excessively weepy. There are blood vessels infiltrating from the dorsal limbus, but the lower limbus is pigmented and then goes right into the defect.

PE - afebrile, normal heart rate and rhythm, no nasal discharge, normal respiratory auscultation. Head does tilt with nose to the left. Unsure if this is because she cannot see out of her constricted pupil or if it is a neurologic finding. She does move with hesitation behind and seems to stand a little base-wide. I am unsure of the clinical significance of this as it may have been present since she arrived at the rescue and may be static. Other differentials include worsening EPM, CVA, tumor, etc. We will monitor her here.

Sugar was rescued on Saturday from the kill pen. She was treated with penicillin there for unknown clinical signs of illness, and they had a video of her with hyperflexion of her hind limbs. Once Julie got her home, she realized she was not eating well. She has continued to decline.

Today on exam, HR 80+, RR 40, T 97.5, quiet gut sounds present, increased respiratory effort with abdominal component, but no active nasal discharge or cough. Mild ocular discharge present. MM dark pink with a slight toxic line. Abdomen looks pendulous.

Sugar is inappropriately ataxic during handling, especially in the hind limbs, and she is depressed when not stimulated.

We started IVF at the farm and Julie is going to give 10 mg dex 1x per day and banamine 500# dose twice a day.

Bloodwork back at the clinic showed leukopenia, elevated muscle enzymes, elevated liver enzymes, and multiple electrolyte abnormalities including hyponatremia and hypokalemia. Serum is lipemic. SAA mildly elevated at 350.

Differentials include rabies, which I discussed with Julie. We also discussed extremely poor prognosis, especially without the ability to hospitalize.

I instructed her to add 30 mL karo syrup four times a day to the treatment plan, and Julie will keep her on fluids at home - 15 L per day.
